J. D. Fleeman,

A Bibliography of the Writings of Samuel Johnson, 1731-1984

Welcome to this up-dating of the late David Fleeman's A Bibliography of the Writings of Samuel Johnson, published in two volumes by Oxford University Press on 2 March 2000. The Bibliography attempts to list all editions of Johnson's works from his first publication, 'Messia', in John Husbands's Miscellany in 1731, to the editions published in the year of the bicentenary of his death, 1984. That year David Fleeman hosted an international conference at Pembroke College, Oxford, Johnson's college and his own, and called a halt to the record of modern editions.

This site is devoted to additions and corrections to the Bibliography; its aim is not to continue the list beyond 1984. It is intended as a quarry for interested Johnsonians and takes a liberal view of what constitutes an addition or correction. Sifting will be the responsibility of some later reviser. Items are listed in Fleeman order, and the information has been given as briefly as possible. A provisional attempt has been made to allot new items to their place in the Fleeman sequence. NIF stands for 'Not in Fleeman'. I have followed David Fleeman in extending the English use of 'Esq.' to Americans, and apologize to those whose names I do not know.

I had intended to give the source of an item at the end of the entry, but some scholars have been so generous as to make that laborious. I am particularly grateful to Don Eddy, for allowing me to reproduce the information in his review of the bibliography (The Library, 7th ser., 2 (2001), 161-78), and to Jerry Goldberg for permission to use the listing of his Johnson library. I have retained many of the differences in styling of these lists, while adapting them to the Fleeman order. I am indebted to David Christie, Roger Lonsdale, Jim McCue,, David Vander Meulen (review essay in The Age of Johnson, 13 (2002), 389-435), Shef Rogers, and Henry Woudhuysen for generously sharing information with me, to Robert J. Barry, most particularly, and Amelia Prozano, who helped Don Eddy and Jerry Goldberg, and to Stephen Owen who originally helped set up the web-page.

I do not wish to add further to the lists of copies, but John Bloomberg-Rissman of the ESTC invites reports of additional institutional copies to be sent directly to him, either by email (at johnbr@ucracl.ucr.edu) or by post (CBSR 016, Olmsted Hall, University of California, Riverside, CA 92521-0154). I am happy to receive corrections and other additions.

List of Copies: 'Interest in Rasselas during the American Civil War is similarly attested by a copy Fleeman does not cite of an 1850 illustrated edition (59.4R/207) in the University of Virginia Library. It is inscribed "To our dear little boy, Paul Brandon Barringer on his eighth birthday, from his uncle & aunt, Victor & Barringer. Concord [North Carolina] Feb 13th 1865." More interesting, however, is that it is signed for the young Maria Barringer by leaders of the Confederacy, ten days after Lee's surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox Court House. The cataloguing record of the book records those signatures as follows: "Jefferson Davis, 19th April 65, F. R. Lubbock Ex Gov. of Texas, Col. & A.D.C. to the President 19th April 1865, Wm. Preston Johnston, Col. A.D.C. to the President son of Genl. A. S. Johnston—19 April 1865, J. Taylor Wood Apr 19/65 [A.D.C.], Burton N. Harrison [Private Secretary to the President], C. E. 75.3TT/1-4 [p. 1241-4] Taxation no Tyranny

‘Though he [Fleeman] does not call attention to the fact, the information he provides indicates that the figures for the first and fourth “editions” or printings are the same and thereby suggests a hitherto unrecognized link. In a note about one copy of the third printing, he points out still another complication: “The press figures in this copy are eccentric, showing it to be made up of sheets from the different impressions (p. 1243). The account of the fourth edition seems mistaken, however, for at least some copies of the fourth edition, including those reported in an article by William Todd to which Fleeman refers, have a completely different set of figures. These, moreover, match exactly those in the eccentric copy [of the third edition] (except that Fleeman does not report one for page 84). It appears that this copy does indeed comprise sheets from different impressions, but that it may consist simply of the title-page gathering of a third printing coupled with the body of a fourth.’[Professor David L. Vander Meulen]

Paper: 'In my case the date appears specifically in the corner of the sheet - and indeed is repeated in the other three corners. (This copy also has the date 1795 present in two of the four corners of every other sheet.)' [Professor David L. Vander Meulen]

Notes, line 2: read 48817 [Professor David L. Vander Meulen]

'In checking Fleeman's list of [press] figures for the complete volume against my own copy, I found that the ones for gathering a, the "Advertisement," do not match. (In addition, my first leaf is signed *a instead of †a as Fleeman reports.) Comparison on the Hinman Collator of my copy against one having Fleeman's press figures reveals that although much of the Advertisement is from the same setting, variations occur even in those parts, and in addition a considerable section of it has been revised. My copy concludes with three lines of regular text on a8^v (p. xxxii), whereas the form Fleeman describes has fifteen. The special characters in front of the signature on the first leaf may signify that this gathering is indeed a replacement one; that two different symbols occur raises the possibility that the sheet was canceled twice, and that the two cancellations mentioned in the ledger are for the same gathering.' [Professor David L. Vander Meulen]

Date of publication: No specific advertisement found in the newspapers, but sometime between April 17, 1787 and November, 1787. The General Evening Post of April 10-12 (and April 14-17), 1787 advertised, 'In the Press, and speedily will be published, In One Volume, Octavo, A NEW EDITION of THE LATIN COMEDY OF IGNORAMUS.,' but I located no further advertisements in any newspaper. It was reviewed in the Critical Review 64 (November, 1787) 33336, published early in December. The review noted that the price was '6 s. in Boards.'

Notes: Ruggle, George, 1575-1622. Edited by John Sidney Hawkins, 1757-1842. Although the Critical Review devoted almost four pages to the play, the net effect was scarcely one to make any potential reader rush out to buy a copy. The review ends, 'We receive it with thankfulness; but we must own our ingratitude: we have more than once dropt asleep over pages; which have been compiled and written with no little toil. The rust of antiquity is a never failing opiate' (p. 336).

Since John Nichols had printed 500 copies of the-play at his own expense, he could not have been happy with such a review. In an effort to promote sales of the play, and to be fair to John Sidney Hawkins, Nichols wrote a detailed letter to the Gentleman's Magazine, which published it as the main part of its review; see the Gentleman's Magazine 58 (January, 1788) 49-51. It prints Samuel Johnson's letter to Nichols of April 12, 1784--see the Letters of Samuel Johnson, ed. Bruce Redford. 5 vols. (Princeton: Princeton U. Press, 1992-94) 4: 310-11--plus all of Hawkins' 'Plan of a new Edition of the Latin Comedy of Ignoramus,' which had been corrected by Samuel Johnson. Nichols tells us that 'The following is the Proposal which was inclosed in the Doctor's letter; and it is but justice to declare that every part of the engagement has been punctually fulfilled' (p. 49). [The original manuscripts of both Johnson's letter and the Plan are in the Hyde Collection.] The review continues, 'All this, and even more than this, we will venture to say, has been done by Mr. Hawkins, who has shewn much judgement and uncommon assiduity, both in the comment and the glossary; and, in the memoirs of his author, has brought forward many new and entertaining particulars' (p. 49). Most of the rest of the review consists of extracts. [Please note that Nichols reprinted all the review from the magazine (omitting some extracts) in his Literary Anecdotes of the Eighteenth Century, 9 vols. (London: Printed for the Author, 1812-15) 9:35-37.]

Alas, the play was also reviewed by Richard Porson (1759-1808) in the Monthly Review 78 (March, 1788) 197-201. In his opening paragraph Porson notes that 'the comedy of Ignoramus is sunk and overwhelmed in a prodigious mass of notes and illustration' (p. 197). Porson admits, almost grudgingly, that the collation of 'all the old copies, printed and manuscript. he seems to have performed with sufficient industry and accuracy, and without ostentation'; but the reviewer then continues, 'We mean not to deny merit to many of the annotations on Ignoramus, yet we are forced to confess, that the greater part can neither convey instruction nor amusement' (p. 199). The review ends with a paragraph of such outrageous condescension that it is painful to read.

Although Nichols refers to the Plan as a Proposal, it was merely Johnson's personal proposal to Nichols and was never meant--as the letter makes clear--to be printed and published as an appeal for subscriptions. It does seem evident, however, that the Plan should be admitted to the Johnson bibliography. With Ignoramus we have not only Johnson's corrected Plan but his letter to Nichols setting forth the terms for printing and publication. Did Johnson assist Hawkins in any way with the actual editing or annotation of the text of the play? Probably at least six of the copies listed above--Yale, Cornell, McMaster, Hyde Collection, Goldberg and Zachs--were purchased in the hope that some Johnsonian connection beyond the Plan might be established. At this time, in Fleeman's words, such thoughts must 'remain conjectural.' [Donald D. Eddy, Esq.]
