"Nota die sancti Anthonii predicavit quidem episcopus Civitatis thema sicut sol refulsit in domo Dei"

Comment: There is no indication of the year; Finke's reason for dating it to 1418 is presumably based on the another sermon on the list, "Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas", which was delivered for Sigismund's confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418.

Date: 23 January 1418 (?) (Septuagesima)

Source: Praha, Archiv hradu, Knihovna metropolitní kapituly, Cod. E.77, f. 19rb:
"Dominica circumdederunt me predicavit quidem doctor de Monasterio dicens thema voca operarios". There is no indication of the year but Finke dated all of the entries on this list to 1418, presumably because one sermon on the list, "Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas", was delivered for Sigismund's
confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418.

Comment: The date is based on the previous entry which is for Dominica exurge (Sexagesima) which fell on 30 Jan. in 1418. There is no indication of the year but Finke dated all of the entries on this list to 1418, presumably because one sermon on the list, “Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas”, was delivered for Sigismund’s confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418. Finke did not date this sermon.

“Esto michi predicavit Mauricius doctor thema karitas non querit que sua sunt”.

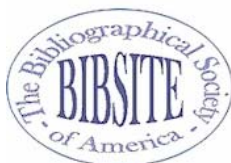

Comment: There is no indication of the year in this entry. Finke’s reason for dating it to 1418 is presumably based on the another sermon on the list, “Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas”, which was delivered for Sigismund’s confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418.

Comment: There is no indication of the year; Finke’s reason for dating it to 1418 is presumably based on the another sermon on the list, “Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas”, which was delivered for Sigismund’s confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418. Finke cited this sermon as anonymous, neglecting to mention that the author was a doctor of the University of Paris.

Comments: There is no indication of the year in this entry. Finke’s reason for dating it to 1418 is presumably based on the another sermon on the list, “Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas”, which was delivered for Sigismund’s confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418. A sermon on “Ecce nunc dies salutis” was delivered by Leonardo Dati, O.P., probably on 8 Mar. 1415.

Comments: There is no indication of the year in this entry. Finke’s reason for “Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas”, which was delivered for Sigismund’s

confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418.

Comments: There is no indication of the year in this entry. Finke's reason for dating it to 1418 is presumably based on the another sermon on the list, "Dignus est ut ei hoc prestas", which was delivered for Sigismund's confirmation as King of the Romans in January 1418.
